Hitler Calls Reichstag to Hear His Reply to Roosevelt's Plea

BERLIN, April 17 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler today summoned the Reichstag for April 28 to deliver his reply to the peace appeal of President Roosevelt.

It was officially announced that Hitler considered the President's message "so important that he had decided to make his answer known before the Reichstag."

GOVERNOR MAY ASK CIG, GAS TAX

By Associated Press

Governor Saltonstall may come out flatly for a cigarette tax and in favor of increasing the state gasoline tax from three to four cents a gallon in his impending special message on taxation, a source close to the administration disclosed today.

A Republican leader, who asked anonymity, said the message has been held up because of several major revisions since it was originally drafted.

The governor's original budget message several weeks ago included the cigarette and gasoline tax proposals.

Later, however, Saltonstall disowned their authorship and emphasized he was forwarding them to the Legislature merely as recommendations from Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long and "the most practical I have seen."

Long estimated the cigarette tax would net $6,000,000 in additional revenue and a four-cent tax on every gallon of gasoline would bring in about $26,000,000.

Every person with whom the governor has conferred regarding his impending message has been sworn to secrecy, a Republican legislative leader disclosed.

While newspapers attacked the appeal and indications were given of a negative answer, a communique said:

"The American President Roosevelt in a telegram has expressed the wish that the Fuehrer make known his position before the Reichstag."

"The Fuehrer considers this matter so important that he has decided to make known his answer to the American President in the name of the German people before the Reichstag."

Hitler himself ended consultations with his foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, on the message and went to Austria to inspect army training centers.

At the same time newspapers used terms like "theatrical trick" and "arrogant impudence" in reference to Roosevelt's appeal for at least a ten-year pledge against aggression. Nazi sources said Hitler had given the message "routine treatment."

Just before the unexpected announcement by Hitler, a foreign office spokesman declared:

"Roosevelt's appeal is so comprehensive and so concerned with practically every aspect of international relations that much time must be taken for a reply."

Generally speaking, government officials are too busy now with preparations for the chancellor's 60th birthday anniversary Thursday, he said.

Nazi Conquest Plot Sent F. D., Says Knickerbocker

(Editor's Note: The following startling dispatch cabled by H. R. Knickerbocker, world-famous correspondent of International News Service, was sent on what he termed "absolutely unimpeachable authority." Questioned regarding details of its confidential source, he expressed himself as "entirely satisfied" that it was authentic to the last degree. I. N. S.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1939)

PARIS, April 17—One of the most astounding developments yet to shake a war-fearing world—a reported threat by Adolf Hitler against the entire Western Hemisphere—was disclosed to this correspondent today.

From a well-informed adviser in Europe, President Roosevelt was said to have received a verbatim transcript of a conversation between Hitler and one of his most trusted aides before the Fuehrer's occupation of Czechoslovakia, ostensibly disclosing his real ambition and intent of world conquest.

It was set forth as the underlying reason for President Roosevelt's peace appeal to the dictators on Saturday and for his whole policy of strengthening America's military, naval and diplomatic defenses against a menace to our national security.

PROVED U. S. DEFENSE VITAL

There was no explanation, of course, of how a confidential conversation between the ruler of the greater German Reich and one of his closest collaborators could have leaked out and eventually found its way into the hands of the man in the White House.

But the authority for the disclosure to this correspondent said that the verbatim report proved the immediate necessity of radical measures of self-defense in the Western Hemisphere.

It also was cited as justifying any conceivable measure, even the most unconventional, for attempting at this late date to impress the Fuehrer with the fact he had misjudged American public opinion and the American will to self-defense.

The substance of the alleged conversation was set forth as follows:

"I intend to go in and take the whole of Bohemia and Moravia and make Slovakia a protectorate. By autumn, I shall have brought into a great National Socialist federation of eastern European states under leadership of the Reich at least Poland, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Greece and may be Turkey, although I am not so sure of Turkey."

JAPAN TO ATTACK PACIFIC

"Those countries which willingly consent will be welcomed. Those which resist will be crushed."

"The Soviet Union will not fight, and I will not touch her as long as she is quiet. By autumn I shall be ready with this coalition under Reich control to attack France and Britain. It will be a short war and with my armies fighting on one front will without question end with Germany triumphantly victorious and, best of all, with the British and French fleets in our hands."

"Then we enter the third and last stage, establishment of a Pax Germanica throughout the western world. We will have an overpowering sea force."

"Japan will attack America in the Pacific, while we attack with the combined former naval forces of Britain and France and with our own and Italy's in the Atlantic."

This report of the remarks may seem fantastic, but they were put forward with an authenticity comparable to that of the gold dollar. They would seemingly explain the timing of President Roosevelt's appeals, which came during an unexpected pause after the Anglo-Polish agreement.

U. S. DECIDING FACTOR

They would explain equally, the remarkable change in policy of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who at Munich was willing to let Hitler take the Sudetenland and apparently willing also to let him conquer farther to the east, but changed his mind when he became convinced Hitler intended to turn and destroy the west after accumulating sufficient backing in the east.

It is universally agreed in Europe now that the most important thing is to see whether Hitler will take seriously the American government's immense effort to persuade him that the United States will be a factor in a conflict big enough perhaps to decide it.

Equally universal opinion is that he will not be persuaded.

Somerville Killers Move Nearer Chair

One step closer toward the electric chair was taken today by Wallace Green, 21, and Walter St. Sauveur, 19, both of Somerville, when their stay of execution was revoked in Middlesex superior court.

Arrive at Court to Hear Doom

FRIEND OF KNOX TELLS OF PARTY

Details of a weird night in the apartment of ex-State Trooper George T. Knox, on trial for the murder of Mrs. Helen Darragh Dale, pretty divorcee, during which Mrs. Dale, scantily clad, paraded the roof top of the Commonwealth avenue apartment building in which she shared Knox's quarters, were revealed on the witness stand today.

Ex-State Trooper George A. Dodge of St. Mary's street, Back Bay, an investigator for the defense and an admitted "buddy" of the accused man, told the story. Under questioning by Defense Counsel James McGrail, Dodge said it happened about 10 days before May 22, 1937, the date upon which Mrs. Dale was found in the apartment shot and dying.

TELLS OF MEETING

"When did you first meet Helen Dale?" was the question.

"About six months before the shooting," he said. "It was in a restaurant in Kenmore square, and the second time was about ten days before the shooting."

"What was her condition?" "She was intoxicated. Her hair was ruffled up and her face was distorted. I could not identify her as the same person. Mrs. Dale spoke thickly, and told Knox to get me out of the apartment."

"Knox told her to go back to bed, and it was necessary for Knox to pull her from the hall into the bedroom. I heard loud noises, and he might have sworn at her."

GOT HER OFF ROOF

"Did anything happen later?"

Quoted McGrail.

"Sometime later I heard the

The convicted bandit-slayers of William Phillips, Somerville storekeeper, were taken, manacled, from state prison to East Cambridge courthouse for the brief five-minute session.

State troopers accompanied the prison guards who had the youths in charge on the short trip to and from the courthouse, and two troopers were on guard during the court proceedings.

In revoking the stay, Judge Wilford D. Gray set no definite date for the execution.

PLAN NEW TRIAL MOVE

Therefore, under the 1935 statute, Warden Francis J. W. Langan must execute the condemned men in not less than 20 days from this date, or not more than 30 days, unless a respite or a new trial is granted.

This would set the probable execution date as between May 7 and May 17.

Robert E. McCarthy, counsel for Green, stated, however, that he will file a motion for a new trial for his client.

Dapperly dressed were both condemned youths as they stood in court, but both were thin and pale. Green appeared nervous and was biting his lip, but St. Sauveur was calm as he glanced curiously around the courtroom.

VICTIM FATHER OF FIVE

Phillips, 55, father of five children, was shot to death as he valiantly battled with milk bottles to foil a holdup attempt in his little shop in Somerville on May 31, 1938. The condemned slayers saw their last chance to escape the death penalty disappear Friday when the State Supreme Judicial Court refused to consider a number of assignments of error.

St. Sauveur claimed he was tricked into signing a confession after he was shown a fake telegram by Lieutenant Daniel O'Connell of Somerville, naming St. Sauveur as the actual killer. The high court ruled that such an admission was permissible as evidence.

The two Somerville youths were found guilty of first degree murder last October in Middlesex superior court and sentenced to death by Judge Wilford D. Gray. Appeal was taken at once.

Once firm friends the two young men became enemies during the trial when each attempted to shoulder on the other the actual shooting of Phillips.

Youth Given 6 Years In Phone Break Case

Characterized by Judge Elijah Adlow as a youth who had "made up his mind to be a thief," James R. Happenie, 20, of Bowdoin street, Dorchester, was sentenced to six years in the House of Correction today for his part in rifling a pay telephone.

Happenie faced two charges of intentionally injuring property and two charges of larceny in connection with breaks into telephone pay stations in Park street subway and a Washington street building last January.

HELD IN $10,000

He pleaded not guilty to all four charges, and appealed the sentences, the maximum Judge Adlow could impose. He was held in $10,000 bonds.

Special Officer Daniel Donovan testified he arrested Happenie for the Park street subway break, and that after first swearing he had been with his wife in an Essex street grill at the time of the crime, Happenie then confessed his part in it.

"That's enough for me," said William Brophy, defense counsel, rising suddenly. "I've known Officer Donovan a long time, and if he says my client confessed, it's enough for me."

LENIENCY PLEA FAILS

He then began a long plea for leniency on the grounds that Happenie was young and had a wife.

"Nothing doing," said Judge Adlow. "He has the worst record for his age of anyone who's come before this court. He's made up his mind to be a thief. His brazenness amazes me. He tackles jobs an experienced criminal would never touch. I'm going to give him the maximum."

"That seems a little harsh," Brophy protested. "We might still salvage him."

"Salvage him?" asked Judge Adlow. "I put him on ice. The salvage him. If he stays in this game he's playing, he'll be killed."

CONSECUTIVE TERMS

Brophy asked that the sentences of two and a half years on each injury count and six months each on the larceny counts run concurrently, but the phone company attorney objected, and added that the company was investigating 30 more breaks into pay phones.

"The sentences will run consecutively," said Judge Adlow. "Six years."

GOVERNOR PLANS FOR STRIKE EMERGENCY

Ready to Act if Fuel Deadlock Continues

Governor Saltonstall is prepared to declare a state of emergency, if necessary, to break the deadlock between fuel truck drivers and their employers, he declared today.

He made the declaration after he had conferred with Adjutant General Edgar G. Erickson, Commissioner James T. Moriarty of the state board of labor and industries and with his personal attorney, Raymond S. Wilkins.

After the conference was adjourned it was announced another meeting would be held later in the day between representatives of the men and employers, with possibility of settlement in sight.

The question at issue involves wages and the termination time for the new contract.

DRIVERS OFFER PLAN

The drivers, who receive 75 cents an hour for a 48-hour week in the winter, and 88 cents for a 40-hour week in the summer, are willing to take, it was said, 75 cents an hour for the year around, providing the wage contract is drawn up to expire anytime between October 1 and December 31.

This the employers are not willing to do, asserting that it is merely a subterfuge to place the workers in a strategic position for bargaining when fuel is most needed.

The drivers then countered with a demand for $1 an hour straight for a 40-hour week the year round.

Asked what he discussed with Adjutant-General Erickson the governor said:

"I asked him whether he had plans arranged in event of emergency was declared. He told me such plans are on file in his department. I told him to familiarize himself with them."

"You have not declared an emergency, then?" he was asked.

"Absolutely not" was his reply.

At a conference with Moriarty, the governor received a report from the labor commissioner in which it was stated that 75 Esso gasoline filling stations in Greater Boston are closed.

Others closed are 20 Tydol, 150 Shell, 10 Atlantic, 16 Cities Service and all Socony as the officials do not dare to send out trucks.

He also reported that 80 per cent of the Texaco filling stations in this area are closed.

Moriarty reported the following companies have signed contracts with the union, Pacific Oil Company, Martel Oil Products, Mystic Motor Transportation Company, Becker Transportation Company, Metropolitan Ice Company, American Oil Products, J. J. Cronin, Tremont Oil Company, Plymouth Oil Company, Boston Ice Company, Amoco Oil Company, Superior Oil Company, Universal Lincoln Oil Company, H. H. Maguire.

He also reported that thus far 580 permits had been issued to 50 dealers by the division of necessities of life to make emergency deliveries of coal and oil.

STATIONS ARE CLOSED

He also reported that 253 emergency deliveries have been made to private homes, 88 to apartment houses, 41 to hospitals, 42 to schools, 18 to convalescent homes, 34 public buildings and federal agencies, 15 hotels, 32 manufacturing concerns, 15 churches, 5 office buildings and 5 transportation companies and three convents.

He said that a total of between 800 and 1000 gasoline filling stations in Greater Boston are without gasoline.

He indicated that if Governor Saltonstall asked him about declaring an emergency he would advise against it.

"I do not consider an emergency exists," he added.

John P. McBride, acting director of the division of necessities of life, said union officials had told him they would not furnish drivers any longer to operate fuel trucks for emergency as several firms have signed the agreement and any one desiring fuel oil may get it by ordering from these concerns.

WASHINGTON, April 17 (AP)—Willis Van Devanter, who retired from the Supreme Court nearly two years ago, observed his 80th birthday today.

Heatless Homes in Back Bay

Many Back Bay apartments were heatless today as fuel deliveries remained at a standstill.

Tenants in apartment houses in Symphony road, Back Bay, have been without heat since last Thursday.

Housewives found their gas-stoves were the only sources of heat. Worried mothers bundled their children in blankets as the indoor temperature went down.

Mrs. David Rosen, a Symphony road resident, and mother of two children, said:

"My children have had to wear leggings in the house to keep warm. I wish those union officials would come down here, they'd settle the strike quickly."

Mrs. Theresa Smith, another Back Bay resident, said:

"The only way my family can keep warm is to sit out in the sun. It is warmer outside than it is in my apartment."

Mrs. James Mazza, another neighbor, explained she had to heat the house by the gas-stove.

Harry Tully, superintendent of three buildings in Symphony road, stated he was unable to supply heat to any of his tenants.

Truck Strike Renewal Looms

Renewal of the recently terminated 23-day southern New England truck strike became a definite possibility today after the Springfield AFL union local rejected a compromise agreement.

Terms of the pact which ended the strike stipulated it had to be ratified by all nine local unions involved before it would become effective.

Registry of Motor Vehicle inspectors took to the highways today, watching all automobiles which do not bear stickers showing inspection of lights, brakes and other equipment.

Although motorists have until the end of the month to obtain the new stickers, machines that do not bear them will be stopped to check whether equipment is faulty. Those with poor equipment face loss of registration.

COSTS JIM $320 TO BE KING GUEST

WINDSOR, England, April 17 (AP)—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the American President, enjoyed the pomp and splendor of the changing of the guard at Windsor castle today after having a dinner with King George and Queen Elizabeth last night which cost him an unexpected $320.

Roosevelt went to Brussels Saturday for a ball given by the United States Ambassador to Belgium, Joseph E. Davies. There was no regular Sunday transportation service operating to get him back to Windsor in time to be the guest of the British monarch, so he chartered a 21-seat airliner of the Belgian Sabena company to fly him across the channel. It cost $320.

Today Roosevelt watched the changing of the guard with the children of the king and queen, Princess Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, and with Prime Minister and Mrs. Neville Chamberlain and United States Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy. All had been weekend guests at the castle.

Later he returned to London.

Arlington Boy On Raft Saved

A 14-year-old Arlington boy, who found today springlike enough to venture onto Spy Pond near his home, was rescued 500 feet from shore by Arlington police.

Robert Bouzas, of Randolph street, sailed from shore on a homemade raft, and when well out onto the pond, found his craft tilting and himself sliding into the water.

He dove off and started to swim to shore, but the water was so cold and his clothes weighted him down so much he turned back and clung to the raft. A neighbor noted his plight and called police.

The boy was taken ashore by officers in a police rowboat and taken to his home in a cruising car. He was treated for exposure and immersion.

IRONIC BLESSING OF WAR HISSED

SEATTLE, April 17 (AP)—The United States must "assume or share" responsibility for world peace—or vigorously prepare for war, says Maj. Gen. J. F. O'Ryan.

Such responsibility, said General O'Ryan at an armory dedication Sunday where a clergyman was hissed for his unorthodox benediction. Involves participation in an international police force strong enough to enforce peace.

When General O'Ryan, World War commander of the 27th Division of the U. S. Army, finished speaking, the Rev. Louis E. Scholl, unattached Seattle minister, stepped quickly to the microphone.

"Lord, we thank thee for the wisdom of the speaker who said war is the most relentless and insidious enemy of mankind," he began. "Therefore we thank Thee that Christian ministers and workers of this city have invited the people to come from their worship to give their blessings to the doctrine of war and violence as represented by this armory."

"Lord, we thank Thee for the battleships and the bombs, the airplanes and the poison gas. We thank Thee that Thou didst say 'Suffer little children to come unto me that I might drop some bombs upon them and blow them to kingdom come.'"

"We thank Thee that Thou didst die upon the cross, not with a

BRIDE RECOVERS FROM GAS

LAWRENCE, April 17—Quick thinking of Mrs. P. L. Dunham, a registered nurse, saved Mrs. Marion Duchett, bride of a week, from death from carbon monoxide poisoning. Mrs. Dunham, aroused from her sleep by an insistent rapping on her apartment door, found Marion Duchett, the bride's husband, near collapse from fumes.

Recognizing the symptoms of the poison instantly, she rushed upstairs to the Duchett apartment where she found the young wife unconscious on the kitchen floor.

Turning off a heater, the nurse threw open the windows, called a doctor and began to apply first aid methods. Meanwhile, her husband took Duchett out into the open where he quickly recovered.

After several minutes of resuscitation work by the nurse, Mrs. Duchett finally regained consciousness.

Duchett said he and his wife were sitting in the kitchen waiting for the water to heat. He found himself getting weak and saw his wife lose consciousness.

Tornadoes Kill 43, Injure 170 in 5-State Southern Sweep

By the Associated Press

At least 43 persons were killed and 170 injured by weekend tornadoes in five southern states. Some rural communities were virtually levelled and property damage over the area was estimated at many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The twisters struck in widely separated sections of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and Alabama.

Center Point, Ark., a tiny cattle-raising community near Collins, was the major disaster scene. At least 19 persons were killed there; one was missing, and eight others were near death.

11 IN CHURCH KILLED

Eleven lost their lives there when they took refuge in a Center Point Church just after the close of funeral services. Others were killed when more than 25 homes in that section were destroyed.

Edward Phillips, 29, who took refuge in the church, said about 150 persons had gathered to attend the funeral of John Best, a farmer. Just as services were concluded, a hail storm started. Many of the mourners took refuge inside the 20-year-old frame building.

There was a dull roaring and then one side of the church and the roof tore off," Phillips said.

The twister cut a path a quarter of a mile wide and three miles long at Center Point.

12 COMMUNITIES STRUCK

Rain of near-continuous proportions accompanied the winds in Arkansas, where nearly a dozen communities in all were struck.

In Louisiana, seven persons were killed when a twister whipped at Haynesville residential and business property, leveling a score of homes and tearing away portions of a brick power plant.

Texas counted six deaths—three at Pipe Creek, two at Gladewater and one at Athens.

One person was killed at Tillar, Ark., and in northwest Oklahoma seven persons died when a tornado struck Capron and its vicinity. Every building at Capron was wrecked. Damage was estimated at $200,000.

At least one woman was killed and two persons injured near Boligee, in western Alabama early today. Several houses were leveled and some damage done to stores in the Boligee business section.

Ohio River Flood Grows; 4 Dead

CINCINNATI, April 17 (AP)—A "flash flood" in the Ohio River Valley today routed lowland residents, left four dead, and closed highways in 13 Ohio counties.

Rain-choked tributaries backed up by the rising Ohio, inundated thousands of acres of lowlands after a five-inch rainfall. River-front families left homes for the second time in two months.

The four drownings occurred on tributaries of the Ohio in the Kentucky-Indiana-Ohio-West Virginia region.

In Cincinnati, the Ohio neared a 54-foot stage and was rising steadily. U. S. Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux predicted more showers and a 54 to 60-foot stage by late Wednesday.

WEYMOUTH WIDOW SEES HOME BURN

A 55-year-old North Weymouth widow, living alone in her five-room cottage in Seabury street, today saw her home and savings burn to ashes and escaped being burned to death herself only by luck.

Mrs. Bertha S. Pond, whose tiny home was set in a yard some distance from the highway was raking dead leaves and twigs today when suddenly she was deafened by an explosion and saw flames sweep through the kitchen.

She pulled water from the well until the flames were out of control and beat her back, then ran to the nearest house and in an alarm.

Her home, however, had burned to the ground, with $50 and her pocketbook, in which there was more money, and her personal possessions. There was no insurance.

She told fire she believed the kitchen stove had exploded.

Highly Trained Twin Trails His Brother

NEW YORK, April 17 (AP)—The varied training given the identical Woods twins, principles in an unusual educational experiment, already has shown an unexpected result.

The boys, seven years old tomorrow, have developed contrasting attitudes toward school, and—

Surprisingly, it is Johnny, "scientifically conditioned" since birth, who dislikes his studies while Jimmy, who had an untutored infancy and "just grewed," thinks that school is swell.

JIMMY'S MARKS BETTER

Their older sister, Ellen, a high school student, said scientific Johnny was only slightly better than average but that unscientific Jimmy got report cards that were almost perfect.

The blond, blue-eyed brothers are in the second grade. Both are restless, fond of yelling at peak voice and addicted to telling tall tales of their ability.

"I hate school," explained Johnny, "because you have to learn and read. I like to draw and color, I like to play."

Asked what he could play, he said:

JIMMY'S READING EDGE

"Oh, I can play almost anything and I can rattle. I can catch. I can throw a ball over the roof."

"Baloney," interrupted practical Jimmy. "You can't even throw over a garage roof."

Jimmy said that school was "swell" because "you have spelling and words and numbers and stories."

"I have a higher reader than Johnny," he added. "I have the 'Tey Elephant' and he has 'Happy Said Bow Wow.'"

VICTIM—Little Dorothy Chisholm, 10, of Somerville, holds pocketbook after 15-year-old boy snatched it from her, extracted dollar bill, and then threw it back as he ran away.

Asks U. S. Check On Private Arms

An amendment to the United States Constitution forbidding private organizations the right to bear or store firearms without strict governmental supervision was urged today by S. S. Eisenberg at a State House hearing on four "anti-isms" bills.

Eisenberg said he represented the American Jewish Congress with a membership of 50,000.

The hearing was changed from a room originally scheduled because of an overflow crowd of several hundred.

Parkman Urges State Seize 'El'

The state should take the Boston Elevated Railway by eminent domain, Henry Parkman, corporation counsel for the city of Boston, told a legislative committee at the State House today.

He said it was futile to expect satisfactory negotiations could be made with the stockholders.

Parkman appeared before the legislative committee on Metropolitan affairs after the Governor, through Daniel J. Lynch, his secretary, recommended a study of the railway's assets.

Boy's 4 Reasons For Trying to Hang Himself

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 17 (AP)—A 15-year-old boy, thwarted in an attempt to hang himself, gave Police Captain Lloyd White these reasons:

His father is serving a life term for murder.

His stepfather is in jail for drunken driving.

His mother? He didn't know where she was.

He wouldn't go to school because he was ashamed of his ragged clothes and his mother wouldn't mend them.

Police discovered the mother "just about blotto," White said, in a beer parlor.

The boy was placed in custody of the man who saved his life.

Call Town Aides In 'Asylum Trial'

BROCKTON, April 17—Four town officials of Marion were called today to defend suits totalling $100,000, brought here in Superior Court on the grounds they illegally sent to an insane hospital a once wealthy resident of the town.

Action was brought by the late Mrs. Elva Bruce Sherman, 78 on the day before she died last September and is being pressed by Attorney Florence A. Tracy of Taunton, executrix of her estate.

Defendants are Dr. Raymond H. Baxter, physician to the town board of health, and three members of the Marion board of selectmen, Austin L. Pierce, Horace M. Humphrey and Benjamin Waters, each sued for $25,000 damages.

The plaintiff alleges that the four conspired to have Mrs. Sherman sent to Taunton State Hospital. She was released after Attorney Tracy signed a statement she would care for Mrs. Sherman, who became a welfare recipient shortly before she died.

BACK BAY ATHLETE MISSING

Nation-wide search was begun today for Leonard F. O'Brien, 35, former college and Olympics athlete, who disappeared 17 days ago from his home on Marlborough street, Back Bay.

Head injuries suffered recently in an automobile accident might have brought on amnesia or collapse. Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon suggested in circulars distributed throughout the country.

O'Brien was engaged in the investment business and formerly lived in North Adams and New York city. He was captain of the Williams College baseball team in his senior year, 1934, and played field hockey in the Olympics in Los Angeles in 1932 and in Berlin four years later.

He was described as six feet tall, weighing 175 pounds and of medium complexion with black hair tinged with grey. He was wearing a dark, pencil striped suit, derby, black overcoat and black shoes when last seen.

WPA Union Sent Chief to Russia

WASHINGTON, April 17 (INS).—The Workers' Alliance—the union of WPA workers—sent its president, David Lasser, to Soviet Russia in 1937 as a delegate to the 29th anniversary of the Russian revolution. The House appropriations subcommittee investigating WPA, was told today.

The disclosure was made by Lasser himself under examination by J. O'Connor Roberts, counsel to the subcommittee.

Prisoner Dies In Court Dock

William E. Harrop, 66, of Cornhill street, South End, welfare recipient and father of two children, had just been placed on probation on a drunkenness charge today in Roxbury court when he dropped dead in the prisoners' dock.

The courtroom was thrown into confusion, and because the body had to be left in the dock until arrival of the medical examiner, Judge Frankland L. W. Miles was compelled to suspend court.

Dr. Rudolph Rhemes of Warren street, Roxbury, called to the courtroom, said the defendant had died from a heart ailment.

There were 22 prisoners in the dock when the fatal collapse came.

SOCIALITE, MATE VICTIMS IN CRASH

Facing disfigurement, possibly death, a Boston society girl and her dancer-husband were on the danger list at Strong Hospital in East Boston today as police checked the weekend toll of automobile smashups—including three deaths, one a woman victim of a South Boston hit-and-run driver in a stolen automobile.

The society girl is Mrs. Jacques De Lys, formerly Kathryn Crepper of Brookline, who was so seriously injured that 49 stitches were taken in her face after the accident. Her husband, a professional dancer and well known in theatrical circles, needed 24 stitches to close his wounds.

Both were injured when, police said, a car driven by Edmund Kennedy, also of Brookline, was struck head-on by a car driven by a man who was held for trial in bonds of $2500.

COMMUNITY FUND AIDE

The De Lys were wed in a brilliant ceremony at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in July, 1936, attended by many of the socially prominent. Of late he has been connected with the Boston Community fund.

The driver of the car which was in collision with the Kennedy machine was, police say, Anthony Cinicola, 27, of Everett street, East Boston, who was held by Judge Charles J. Brown on charges of drunken driving, driving to endanger and drunkenness. With him in the machine at the time of the crash on Chelsea avenue, police reported, were Louis Cagnano, 27, of Chelsea street, East Boston, against whom a drunkenness charge was filed, and John J.

Minnetta, 28, of Lexington street. Those killed in week-end crashes were:

Mrs. Anna Rakutis, 45, of Miller avenue, Brockton, killed in the sight of her husband when a speeding car zigzagged down Eighth street, South Boston, mowing her down with two woman companions. Charles Matty, 79, of Auburn, struck by a hit-run machine.

Kusti Neimi, 56, of North Ashburnham, hit while walking on the highway just over the state line in Kidage, N. H.

Five persons narrowly escaped injury in Summer tunnel when their auto, which police said was driven by Peter Salan of Newport, R. I., hit the right wall, bounced across the tunnel, then rolled over twice.

Injured when Mrs. Rakutis was killed in South Boston were Mrs. Pauline Shellack, 32, of Douglas avenue, Brockton, and Mrs. Amelia Thompson, 45, of N street, South Boston.

Mrs. Lillian Joyce and her three children were standing at the corner in the path of the machine. Disregarding her own safety Mrs. Joyce swept the children aside and saved them from being crushed.

The machine ended its mad dash against the side of a building and the driver leaped out.

Frank Wiley of East First st. ran up and grappled with him, but

MRS. JACQUES de LYS
Injured in Car Crash

the fear-crazed man pushed him away and fled.

Wiley and Mrs. Joyce told police they could readily identify him.

The car was stolen in Knapp st., near Beach st., where its owner, Harry Salran of Montana st., Roxbury, had parked it while he attended a moving picture theater with his wife.

COURT BARS EXILE OF EX-RED

WASHINGTON, April 17 (AP)—The Supreme Court today ordered the discharge from custody of Joseph G. Strecker of Hot Springs, Ark., whom the Labor Department sought to deport on the ground that he was an alien Communist.

Justice Roberts delivered an opinion which held that the deportation had resulted from the conviction of the strikers' union, which Strecker was, of being a Communist.

Roberts said that "we conclude that it is the present member ship, or present affiliation—a fact to be determined on evidence—which bars admission, bars naturalization, and requires deportation."

This decision came on a dispute over the right of the Labor Department to deport Strecker, who was arrested in 1932 and was a member of the "Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America."

Strecker was released after a hearing in the Supreme Court, which was held in 1937. He was then deported to the United States, where he was arrested again in 1938.

Reichstag Called For Hitler Reply

He explained that Hitler had decided weeks ago to go to Austria and he could not now disappoint the countrymen.

EXPERTS ANALYZE

Nevertheless the spokesman said some experts were closely analyzing the message and will present results of their studies to Von Ribbentrop who, in turn, may take action to Hitler.

Reichstag is to meet Rumanian Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu tomorrow for a conference to be devoted to attempts to clarify German Rumanian relations. This, a spokesman said, naturally would involve the question of British French offers to help Rumania in case of attack.

It might also be assumed to cover the question of whether Rumania could be relied on as a source of supplies especially wheat, and, naturally, in case Germany should become involved in a war. Gafencu will remain as one of the distinguished foreign guests for Hitler's birthday celebration, but in a private capacity.

SCORNED BY PRESS

At both the foreign office and London, criticism, however, it was said that there was no comparison for the Rumanian and French Ambassadors.

TURKS IN STOP-NAZI WAR BLOC

LONDON, April 17 (AP)—Turkey's neutrality ally in the world war, was reported today to have joined the British-French front against aggression.

Several Turkish cables had been reported to have promised at least neutrality, and possibly war, against the aggressors.

Prime Minister Chamberlain was reported to announce the Turkish neutrality, that Britain and France have promised Turkey independence.

They already have pledged to help Poland, Rumania and Greece defend their independence if they are attacked.

Chamberlain it was believed, also would tell Commons that "good progress is being made in British-French negotiations to bring the Soviet Union into their alliance."

AS YOU are fully expected, Representative Carl Woelke's bill to establish a State fund for compulsory automobile insurance and to produce in $18 that rate died on Beacon Hill.

The "evolution" followed a lengthy debate, during which Mr. Woelke argued that the measure would save at least six million dollars annually for Massachusetts motorists "who have been taking it on the chin."

But seventy House members were not impressed. They voted "no." And the present system gets a new lease on life.

Warm really. Do some Representatives represent?

If you're a Bostonian, paying almost as much to insure your automobile as to buy it, you'll probably reply: "NOT ME!"

METHODISTS OPPOSE American participation in any war save one to repel an invasion by a foreign power.

The church's Portsmouth, N. H., conference, considering the possibility of armed conflict, stands firmly and unequivocally FOR PEACE.

Also, the delegates condemn proposals to give the President or any other official authority to name the "aggressor" in a foreign war.

Here is sound, American common sense. You cannot penalize a nation without antagonizing that nation and inviting a declaration of war on YOURSELF.

The day this country proclaims economic punishment for an European or Asiatic government and calls it an "aggressor" that day your son will be on the way to a trench with a gun in his hand.

"END BIENNIAL SESSIONS," Senator Joseph A. Lange, Jr., advises you.

Assuming leadership in the rather lethargic movement for a return to the "old order," he wants a joint convention of the House and Senate, called to take action on an amendment providing for yearly legislative assemblies.

Isn't the Senator a little hasty? The biennial sessions plan has been in operation only three months. You cannot say that it has received a fair or proper test.

The only real criticism anybody seems to have heard has been from the legislators themselves, particularly from those who resent the automatic reduction in their salaries and who therefore seek to double them.

CONGRESSMAN CONNERY of Lynn finds fault with Civil Service requirements that bar high school graduates from lucrative government jobs.

Too many examinations demand college or university learning, he says. Consequently, thousands of intelligent, ambitious young men and women cannot take them.

You will find abundant food for thought in the Congressman's argument, especially if you remember that neither George Washington nor Abraham Lincoln had the educational "background" now mandatory for many a $1500-a-year Washington job.

Why not ask questions that pertain to the position which is going to be filled? Then let ANY citizen try to give the answers.

More attendance at a college does not produce a superior brain. As the liberal President Grant of Harvard has wisely said, the man who stays at home, reads, thinks and REMEMBERS may be the more discerning.

GRAVE CHARGES are reported among the opponents of Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., as he is expected to present to the House Appropriations Subcommittee.

The Republican leader is said to have information and statements which seemingly indicate abuses and irregularities in Massachusetts WPA operations.

WHAT ARE THESE CHARGES? WHAT OR WHOM DO THEY CONCERN?

These are the questions you want answered. And so do hundreds of other persons, not only those who work in the WPA but also those whose tax payments support it.

In the November elections the people emphatically recorded their opposition to politics in the nation's relief program and rebuked the arrogant and dictatorial practices of entrenched bureaucracy.

The public mind has not changed.

AT HARVARD, the voice of Edwin Booth is heard. A select audience, including Maurice Evans, listens to words spoken nearly a half-century ago by the famous Shakespearean actor. And it is in New York on June 7, 1935.

As you may guess, the remarkable event is possible because of the developments in the early days of the phonograph.

Thomas Edison, whose great genius produced the phonograph and gave immortality to the human voice, was a man of PLEASANT and PERSISTENT. He built up. He did not tear down.

You will find that knowledge important as you see fewer and fewer dragging the war back to the Dark Ages.

Human Side of News -1-

by EDWIN C. HILL

THOSE WHO think youth should live "laxing" with a bold and imaginative approach to the problems of its generation will be gratified by recent headlines from the big colleges. In the field of extra-curricular activities, they have progressed from such pedestrian endeavors as putting a coin in a classroom to an inspired competition in eating raw goldfish.

There is a change of the times, however, not only in the student's attitude, but in the faculty's. For John H. Ziegler, of the University of Chicago, took the lead in this. He is now well-known as the author of the book "The Goldfish." It is now well-known as the author of the book "The Goldfish." It is now well-known as the author of the book "The Goldfish."

That's a way of grabbing and holding a title. Entrants so far in the tournament are Chicago, Harvard, Franklin and Marshall, Pennsylvania, Boston College, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Middlesex University, with others coming in almost daily.

The goldfish don't gag the

students but they touch off a lot of gags. On the serious side, Dr. Edwin Ziegler, Boston pathologist, warns the voracious youngsters that they are in danger of anemia and tapeworms. Obviously, in these hard times, many of these lads won't be in a position to support a tapeworm in the style to which it has been accustomed.

Not wishing to be too cynical about all this, the goldfish eating will be soon forgotten—it appears to this outsider that even such far-fetched attention-getting might be a sign of health and well-being in our colleges.

European university students have traditionally swallowed the white rods of Nietzschean, Bergsonian or Marxian doctrine, instead of goldfish. And in spite of their "cavalier" manner through scholarship, it does not appear that they have greatly nurtured or illumined the continental mind—taking it as it is today.

PROBABLY NOBODY needs to worry about the goldfish. When youngsters start knocking up their best lads and maidens, fear from the lack of fear, less benevolent, and following that when they take their names, lawyers in league.

This is not to take too lightly the generally accepted notion that the business of education is to educate.

It is merely to assume that the verbal urge toward foolishness is more observable in good times than bad.

Girl About Town -1-

by MARY X. SULLIVAN

FROM Mr. William Moore, S. J., nephew of Charles J. O'Malley of Boston, came some interesting snapshots. Mr. Moore, who is a member of the Jesuit Mission at St. Francis, South Dakota, has been working with the young Indians for some time.

The snapshots not only show the progress of the mission, but also the progress of the young Indians. They show the young Indians in various stages of their development, from the simple to the complex.

Mr. Moore, S. J., writes that there is something in the air. (And is there any spring anywhere we'd like to know?)

"We have two seasons here," he writes. "Winter — and the Fourth of July."

PROMINENT BOSTONIANS and college presidents are on the spot. And it is the first time in the history of the city that the President of the city has been in the city.

Dr. Pope, who is the first to be in the city, is the first to be in the city. He is the first to be in the city.

ONE OF the pleasures of air travel is that bloated-pipe feeling we get — which reveals us as hopelessly wide-eyed. Anyhow, American Airlines new offices in Park square definitely heighten the luxury atmosphere. Done in blue and buff, the waiting room resembles a smart club. By the time the limousine rolls up to take the passengers to the airport, you feel you've had a very nice ride.

Political Parade -1- by GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, April 15. One of the most interesting political events of the year is the election of the President of the United States.

Certainly there will seem to be no possibility of political advantage in such a situation. And it is the first time in the history of the city that the President of the city has been in the city.

POLITICAL ADVANTAGE might seem to be the first time in the history of the city that the President of the city has been in the city.

If the President of the city has been in the city, it is the first time in the history of the city that the President of the city has been in the city.

But the President is not saying that. In the event of another world war, America could keep out.

SENATOR BORAH
"America Can Keep Out"

In the event of such a war AMERICA COULD NOT STAY OUT. It is not true, but it is selling the idea.

Snaps is sold on precisely that psychology. The advertiser keeps dining the name of his snap into the ears of the people, and presently they dash into a snap and buy a ske.

There is another remarkable phenomenon in connection with the President's desire to impress the people with the idea that America could hardly escape being drawn into the European war.

He is taking this position without backing either in the Congress, or among the people in the country at large.

CONGRESS under the leadership of such men as Senator Borah, believes America can be kept out of war, for it holds the war-making power, and this Congress will not pass war resolution. You may lay it to rest.

In 1919 Woodrow Wilson was elected on the slogan, "1919 KEPT US OUT OF WAR."

If in that campaign he had even hinted that he proposed to get the United States into the World War, he would have been defeated. Any child knows that.

There is no possibility of political advantage either to the President or to the Democratic Party in the involvement of America in the European war. A war already in progress, but it is far without fighting.

MO'NIA—Mr. Hamlet (once in a decade, along comes a real Hamlet). Perhaps the one we're hoping is entitled to the credit for two Great Melancholies, because he's not his admirer, too. The "Hamlet" position is vacated in currently is the acknowledged master of the role, Maurice Evans. "Would you like to know the steps of a career this young Mr. Evans found it necessary to mention before reaching the top?" In a reasonable humorous and modest style, Maurice Evans was told an abridged "Hamlet" and he says that he'll get to "Play Hamlet in Three Days' Time." LEADERSHIP OF THE Actor Evans—

" My first theatrical memory is a bit vague . . . My father had adopted Thomas Hardy's 'The Trumpet Major' for the Essex Players, in Weymouth Dorset, and with my mother was appearing in the play. The performance was given on a pier that jutted out into the English Channel. As I remember, I was rather bored, and slept through the first two acts—in the arms of Thomas Hardy.

"Then a pair or two of spending my Sundays in a chair, decked in an lion jacket—they're 'bum-freezers' over there for some strange reason—and a mortarboard with a bright scarlet tassel . . . On one Whit Sunday, I remember, our colonel came to a deliberate halt when he was over the hot-air blower in the floor . . . Up went his skirts, up went the curate's hands and the pationisers' eyebrows . . . He was discharged as soon as we reached the vestry, and I was promoted into his place.

"CUT IN [CROUCH] with a vague idea that I wanted to become an actor. I prowled around Drury Lane for a while, found no work at all, and finally, possibly because of my training in the choir managed to get a job as a clerk with Chappell-Harms, a music publishing firm on Bond Street. My employer was Louis Dryfus, and there-by hangs something of a tale. For years later, when Dryfus was casting a musical comedy, he was searching how and how for a juvenile. . . . At his wit's end, he asked his stenographer: 'Where can I find that waxy, chap named Evans that used to work in the choir at St. Paul's?' He might be able to play the part." Whereupon the stenographer amazed him by saying, "I can find him in ten minutes. He played a superb role last week."

"You see, although I had been on the professional stage for six years, the Evans exchequer was hardly bulging . . . Consequently, I joined fortunes with the cleaners, setting up 'The Nine-to-Six Dry Cleaners.'

"MY FIRST APPEARANCE on the American stage was made with Katharine Cornell in Romeo and Juliet' . . . I later played the Dauphin in Miss Cornell's production of 'Saint Joan,' and then played the exiled Dauphin in 'Havelock,' a beautiful play, the one exception to the business I desired to do. I was doubly disappointed at its failure, because it left me without funds for a projected production of 'King Richard II'." Then, a literal miracle happened. "A gentleman who persisted in remaining anonymous called me at the theater, and asked me to meet him at the Gotham bar . . . He said that he understood I wanted to do 'Richard.' I said yes—and he promptly handed me a check for $25,000.

"My benefactor's name was Joseph Verner Reed. "Late last season we began talking over a production of 'Hamlet' in its entirety . . . The same people that were connected with 'Richard' were involved in the production of 'Hamlet' and Reed as one of the backers."

A Groundhog Sees His Shadow

Camilla

by Anne Stretton, who wrote 'PROPOSAL'

Who's Who and What's Happened:

CAMILLA and MARK might have come into a fine inheritance if their father, a famous but eccentric writer, had not neglected to marry their mother. When he died he left no provision for his children but a life insurance policy payable to the house of GLADYS, who had no maternal affection at all for Camilla and Mark. And he willed the house to Dore to SIMON, a cousin. Simon managed the estate efficiently, and was like a brother to Camilla and Mark. They had no idea Simon was in love until the day he brought his fiancée, EVELYN, to Dore. Instantly they disliked her and knew that the feeling was mutual. To Mark's amazement, on his sixteenth birthday Simon made over Dore to him. He stood firm on this, although Evelyn threatened to break their engagement. After they were married and Mark was away to school, Camilla met STEPHEN FULLER, who was taking photographs around Dore.

"Don't sit on that rug, Stephen expostulated. "Take this Burberry."

Camilla looked at Stephen. He was a Turkish friend of mine," he smiled, "has a private. Is a better to sit than to stand and better to sit than to sit. Is your mind if I sit here and smoke a cigarette, but if you don't want me to go, and will you have the cigarette?"

Austen Lake: Gesture to Business: FDR Heaves 1st Ball

A FALL OF RAIN prevented President F. D. Roosevelt from heaving out a shiny new baseball in Washington and starting the Nation whooping until October.

AUSTEN LAKE

Of all the commercial enterprises in the U. S. A., baseball is the only one which prompts our Presidents to lend the majesty of their office, including the army, navy and post-office departments, to a formal inaugural each Spring.

It is a precedent which the First Roosevelt set on the theory that the people like to peer at their official folk and see them perform folksy, simple acts—an example that each chief has followed down to the present, or the reign of Roosevelt II.

When F. D. R. flips out the inaugural ball it will be an old familiar story to Stanley Harris, the slim and marcelled manager of the Senators who bossed them during the administrations of Harding and Coolidge. I have heard him tell how Harding was imbued with the spirit of the common fan and sometimes sneaked out the freight entrance at the White House, giving his secret service men the slip and buying his way into the bleacher sections where he sat among the rush customers and munched his peanuts and swigged his pop. He was one of the three presidents who, from hearsay knowledge, could mark a scorecard with all the correct shorthand curlicues and sum them into a boxscore. The first Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson were the others.

THEY WERE MOMENTS DURING THE LATTER part of Hoover's term when his political managers were trying to color him over with the little humanities in order to tell him back to the American people—a belated attempt which caused them to charter a special train and go up to Philadelphia to watch the world series. He posed with the players, standing patiently with a wistful half-smile and he shook hands understandingly when Babe Ruth, in his camel's hair coat, barged up to the flag-draped box and said, "Hi-yah, Mr. President," a thing that he seemed to enjoy and which left a fleeting, hazy of brightness on his face until it gradually seeged back to its solemn character.

Unlike F. D. R. who has what theatrical folk call a bit of ham in his makeup, Hoover was shy and did not like to be stared at. Nor did he have the trick of easy conversation, so that when he stood up to heave out the first ball at opening games and the camera men would say, "Just one more now and hold the ball up higher," he was a dumaas them with a purver of irritation. Like Coolidge he had learned to say on the subject, though Harris says the White House attaches told him that Hoover read the box scores diligently each morning after breakfast.

But Roosevelt II has command of the fan's familiar lingo and as he wound last year in sitting position with his arm cocked and spraying the camera with the curling of his smile, he warned Rick Ferris, the Washington catcher, "I've got a lot of stuff on the ball," a remark that his recent executive methods would seem to belie, because various Congressional slugs have been knocking his curves out of the state yard and the time is not far distant when the Nation may need to warm up another pitcher.

Still it's the American way and we prefer polo-photos of our Chief brandishing a baton to those of Hitler heeling regiments of goose-stepping youth on their way to slaughter, or of Mussolini haranguing his legionnaire sommeliers international snatches. Nor does it cheapen his office that he lends himself to a business in which the commercial phases are skilfully concealed behind a screen of sentiment, or that the New York Yankees and Washington Senators, which open today in presidential review, are practical industries dedicated to making some profits for their stockholders. The time has come to make a friendly gesture toward business if only by tossing out a yarn, rubber and horseshoe ball. Throw out more friendly balls Mr. President!

Beautiful Chance For 'Dark Horse' To Win Marathon

BY WALTER KILEY

From near and far the nation's plodders were gathering in Boston today for Wednesday's annual B. A. A. Marathon.

Most of the Canadian contingent, a larger one than ever, was testing out the Hopkinton to Boston course today, along with a goodly number of the New Yorkers.

20-1 ODDS ON LOUIS A LAUGH

By RINGSIDE

The 30 to 1 price quoted on Joe Louis over Jack Roper, 36-year-old heavyweight, for their 15-round world heavyweight championship bout in Los Angeles tonight is wrong. The price should be 100 to 1.

Jack Roper, 36-year-old heavyweight, for their 15-round world heavyweight championship bout in Los Angeles tonight.

It is ridiculous to think that an aged warrior like Roper, who will enter the ring with a bad cut over one of his eyes, has even a remote chance of winning.

This one-sided match never should have been permitted. It is an insult to the public which is expected to pay $100,000 to see the slaughter, also detrimental to the boxing game, and it may prove harmful to Roper, who will have to take Louis' terrific punches.

Californians wanted a heavyweight title bout, and they certainly have one. After tonight's affair, they will probably regret they ever considered sending Louis into the ring in a title bout.

Louis is also put in a bad position tonight. If he knocks over Roper with a few punches, it will be said he had an inferior opponent.

If Roper lasts a few rounds, there will be persons who will accuse the "Brown Bomber" of carrying the Californian to please the native sons in the crowd.

CELTS BEATEN, QUALIFY

NEW YORK, April 17 (AP)—The St. Mary's Celtics of Brooklyn, although beaten 3-1 by the Philadelphia Germans qualified for the final rounds of the National Challenge Cup soccer competition by winning the two games, total goal entries, 3 goals to 2.

Visiting firemen, arriving on the battle scene, discovered Pawtucket's Leslie Pawson, course record holder and twice winner—1933 and 1938—had been installed favorite.

DENGIS HAS BEEN ILL

Having considered the many possible winners, the pros and cons of each, this writer strings along with Pawson, too.

Pat Dengis of the Millrose Club might well have been a heavily backed favorite were it not for his winter illness.

Dengis, finishing second to Pawson a year ago, was the freshest man in the field as he crossed the Exeter street line. He was easily the standout as he won impressively in the National Marathon at Yonkers last fall.

Having lifted every real marathon title in this country and Canada with the exception of the Unicorn event, he well deserves to be called America's greatest long distance runner.

But Pat had a tough touch of sickness in January, was laid up for weeks in the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, and it hardly stands to reason that he can come back strong off that unfortunate occurrence.

Others like Johnny Kelley, Arlington, Mass., and the smiling Irishman haven't done any racing this year, and his condition is dubious.

Tarzan Brown, the Narragansett Indian victor of 1936, entered the field today. But Tarzan has never again flashed anything like winning form and in spite of his recent impressive Syracuse 16-mile road race triumph, it's doubtful if he can lead such a pack as that in the B. A. A. classic over the full 26 miles.

COTE TIES AT END

Gérard Cote of Quebec is another well liked. But many of the experts doubt whether he can stay up front over the long trek. Many are switching to Walter Young of Verdun, P. Q., 1937 winner. But there's nothing in his late background to prove him outstanding this season.

From the huge pack which will number well over 300 entries, some dark horse might well spring up to take the laurel wreath of victory. It has happened too often before to overlook such a possibility now.

However, until such time as he's beaten by a better man, Pawson looks class of the field and the man who richly deserves to be rated favorite.

JOHNNY KELLEY, WALTER YOUNG, and PAT DENGIS. Three prominent entries in 43d annual B. A. A. Marathon. Kelley and Young are former winners. Dengis, second last year, is recognized as the nation's greatest long distance runner. But Walter Kiley favors Leslie Pawson over all these.
